

THE MACFARLANE

Gillette
& Co.

By Appointment.

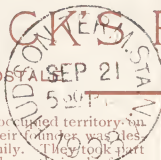

The Clan Macfarlane. This clan occupied territory on the west side of Loch Lomond. Their founder was descended from the ancient Lennox family. They took part in the Battle of Flodden in 1513, where their chief was killed. They were always distinguished for their restless and untamable spirit, and they suffered severely from frequent repressive measures taken against them. The last of the chiefs is said to have emigrated to America at the end of the 18th century. The war cry was "Loch Sloy" and the badge "Cranberry."
